 year of '67 John '67"

The last bell has sounded; the last class has changed; the last assignment has been given; the last test has been endured. And an era ends for forty-nine of St. Simon's students, the Class of 1965.

Each of these graduates carries a part of the spirit of St. Simon's into his sphere of life, and each one holds a promise for the future.

In appreciation for your personal interest in each of us, we, the graduates of 1965, dedicate our Corolla to you, Rev. Father Raymond Drinan.

In your honor and because of your close association with them, we have chosen water and nautical symbols as our theme.

Your service as chaplain in the United States Navy attests to your loyalty to God and your country.

Even now in your pastoral duties at St. Simon Parish, water continues to be an important element in your life. You confer the saving waters of Baptism on the Church's new members, and you offer the water and wine to God on our behalf at daily Mass.

As we embark upon our various careers in life, we realize that you have exemplified the qualities which our education encourages us to emulate, and we will look back and remember you, Father, for your quiet dignity, your stately manner, and the solemn devotion with which you fulfill your priestly obligations.

The lighthouse, a guide of ships to the harbor's safety, uniquely symbolizes St. Simon High School, situated on the sandy shore of Lake Michigan. Casting its white beam through the darkness of a foggy night, the lighthouse marks a path free from the dangers of surging swells. So, also, does St. Simon's guide its students through the darkness of ignorance and fog of fear, by showing the way to Light and Truth.

Carole,
Best of luck in the future
to a real bright girl.

The anchor of the ship holds steady under the force of gusty squalls. In the same manner, the faculty strategically arranges an academic program to ward off the inevitable conflicts of school life. The magnitude of the anchor's hold is proportional to its strength. The dedication of the faculty to their work determines the standard of discipline, learning, and enjoyment that prevails during the formative years of high school. The faculty of St. Simon High School have shown dedication far beyond that which is expected, and for this, we students are grateful.

Faculty Chart a Course of Truth and Sister Mary Teresita leads a dual role in the administration of school affairs. As principal, she arranges schedules, consults with parents, and supervises the general routine of the school.

As teacher, Sister's daily activities include teaching the junior and senior history classes, and the senior religion class.

Students always find Sister's personal and active interest in the school's extra-curricular activities the ideal pep tonic to stimulate St.

SIMON SPIRIT

Scholarship

Sister Mary Helen greets her classes with her smile. In addition to teaching religion and English, Sister also advises the yearbook staff.

Rev. Father Daniel Oullin, the assistant pastor at St. Simon Parish, is engaged in many activities. In addition to his priestly duties, Father instructs the freshman and sophomore religion classes.

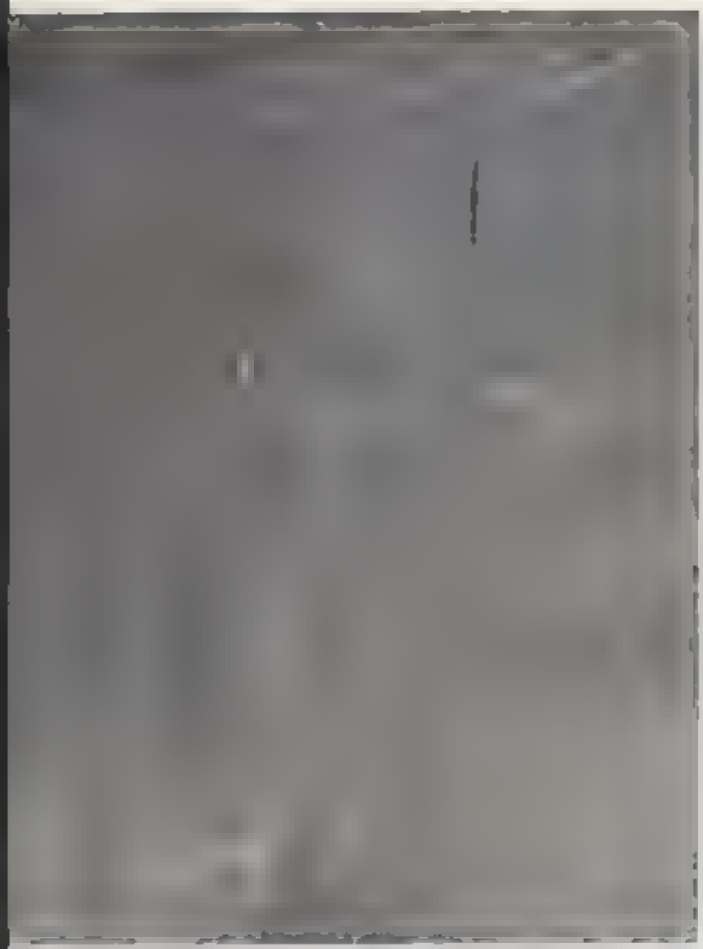

In preparation with the liturgical year, Sister Mary Arthur, Principal of the grade school, and Director of the high school Glee Club, studies a revised hymnal.

Mrs. Kathryn Hansen, shorthand and typing teacher, helps students to prepare for the business world. The success of Mrs. Hansen's students attests to her proficiency as a commercial teacher.

Sister Rose Marie's cheery bulletin boards brighten our school from September to June. Sister injects this same cheerfulness into her Latin I and II, World Geography, and General Math classes.

When he is not busy keeping the school spotlessly clean, Mr. Edward Wanderer employs his efforts on the parish grounds.

Whether exploring the elements of nature or the principles of modern math, pupils meet the challenges that arise in Sister Mary Kilian's science and math classes. As the school coordinator, students find Sister's advice invaluable. Freshman, Jean Girzinski, consults with Sister on her future courses.

Mr. James Elms, study hall supervisor, also has the assorted jobs of librarian and refreshment manager. His broad smile, good humor and his willingness to help have made him popular with all the students.

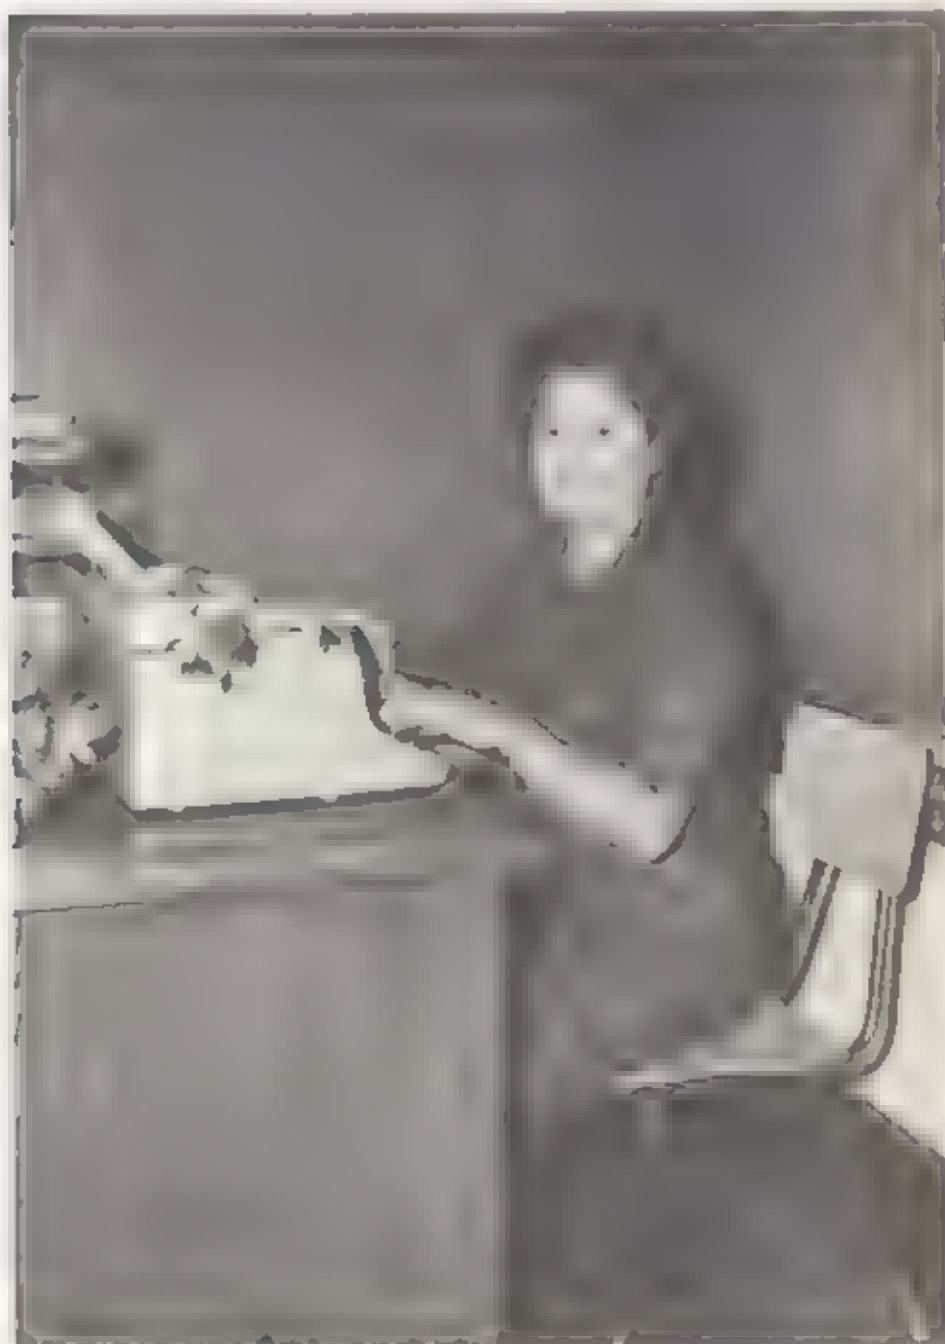

Refereeing a freshman girls' basketball game, Mrs. Irene Peterson enforces the regulations. Mrs. Peterson's interest inspires the girls to keep physically fit.

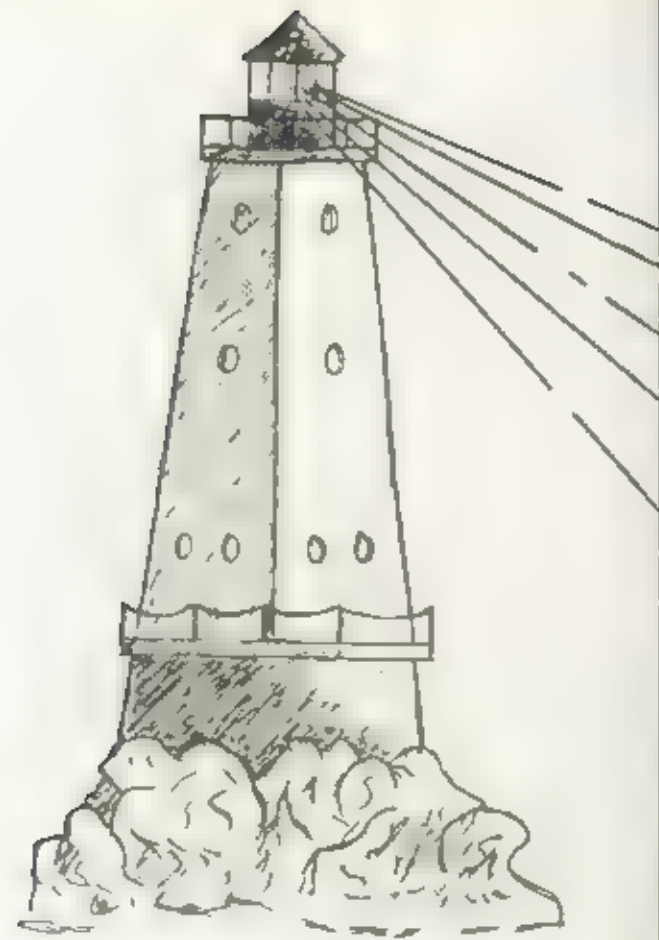

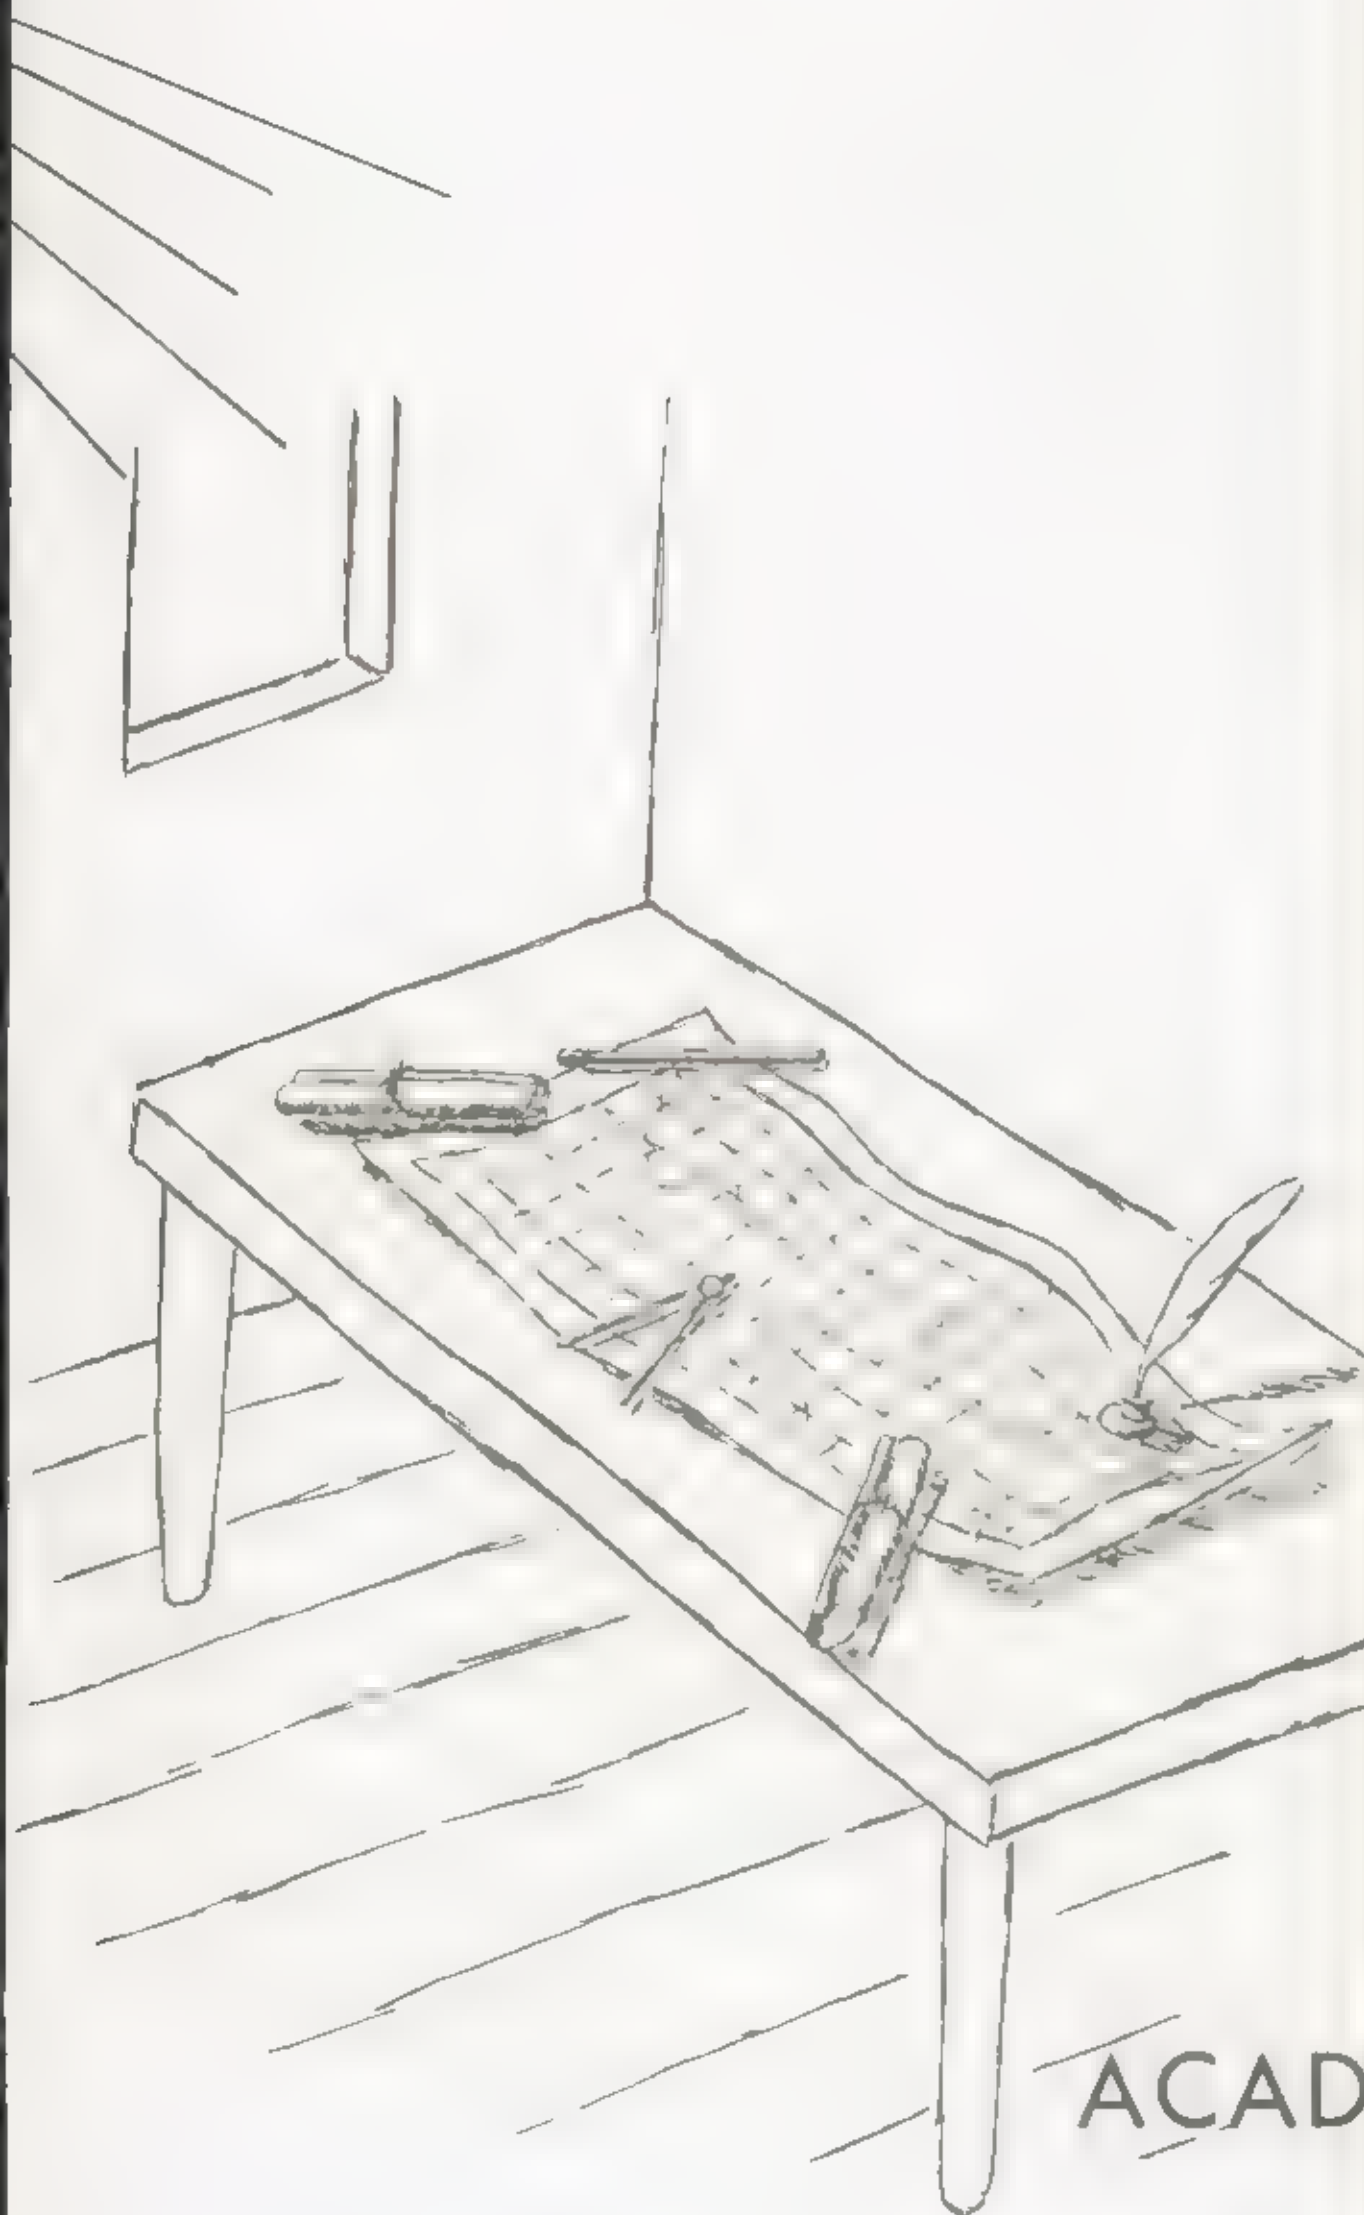

Mrs. Jill Howell's own personal poise and charm is a model for the freshman girls. In her weekly class, Mrs. Howell gives the girls many valuable grooming tips.

"Buenos dias clase," greets Señora Buck to her students. Mrs. Buck's first hand knowledge and genuine appreciation of the Spanish language and lore enlivens all her classes, Spanish, typing, shorthand II, and bookkeeping.

With the absence of, or failure to, understand accurate charts and maps the mariner sees his ship flounder in the vastness of the rolling swells. In like manner, without the stability of a solid academic foundation, the student flounders and becomes lost in the sea of life. A map with only one name on it is useless; an academic schedule which fails to concentrate on and develop fully the basic educational ideas is a failure. At St. Simon High School the academic courses completely prepare the student for temporal and eternal rewards and happiness.

ACADEMICS

Exploring (Matter + Energy and Its Transformations + Comparative Anatomy)= Highlights of the Science Classes

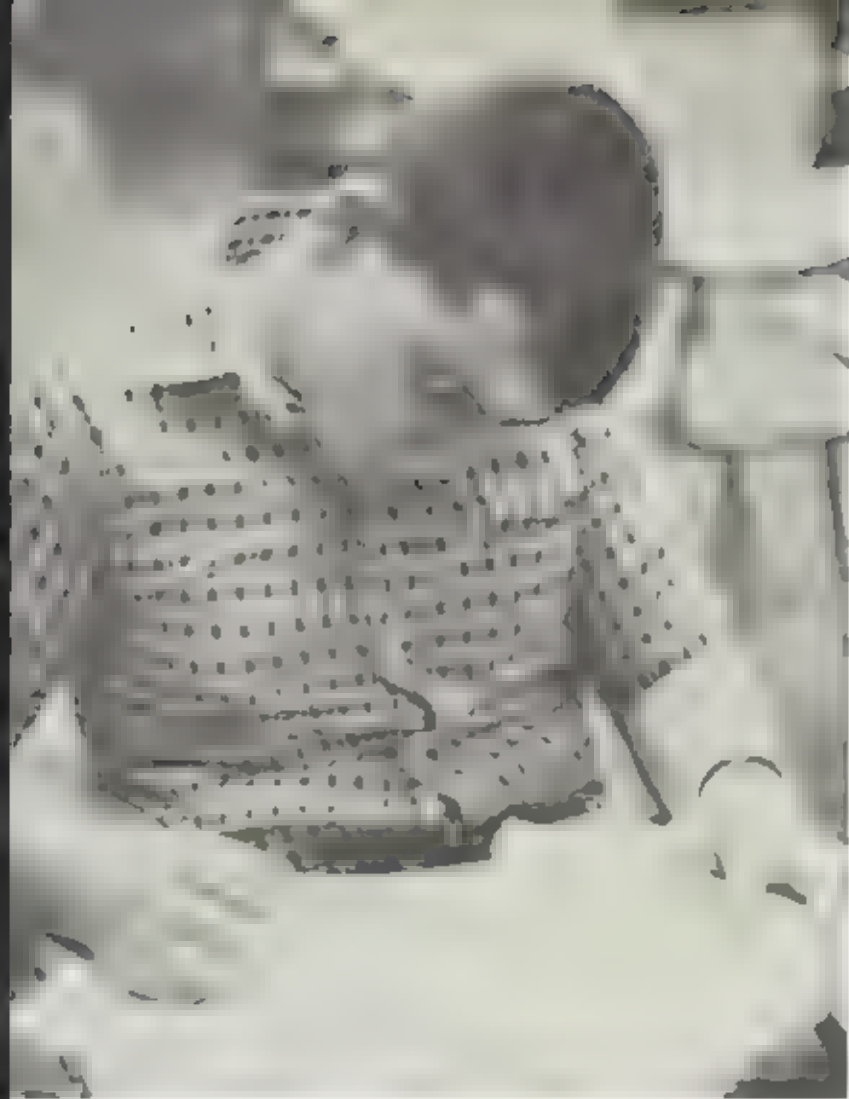

Carole Luskin, Steve Fisher, Tom Fennelly, and Mark Hathaway prepare and examine slides of protozoa in Biology Lab.

Joan Allari, assisted by Diane Daron demonstrate the experimental procedure of determining the composition of forces while Mike Bacholtz, Eileen Del Zoppo, and Joe Martin look on.

Mike Wadel, an Algebra I student, has learned the language and symbolism of modern math and now applies it to a problem.

Bob Huss indicates the starting point on the graph to Mary Jabrocki as Tim Barber points out a set of ordered pairs.

Self-discovery of Mathematical Principles Challenges Today's Math Students

During geometry class, sophomores, Mark Hathaway, Marguerite Derler, and John Findling, use the Venn diagram to illustrate the unioning and intersecting of sets.

Commercial Students Apply

Under the capable supervision of Mrs. Kathryn Hansen, the 1st year typing students advance quickly and expertly.

Mrs. Emma Buck's second year senior shorthand students, intent upon the secretarial field after high school, take dictation in order to increase their speed and accuracy.

Learn Today - Tomorrow

Each student's daily study period in the library allows him to employ its facilities and at the same time complete his daily assignments in an academic atmosphere.

The comptometer is part of the equipment used in the book-keeping class. Tim Barber prepares to add a column of figures as Marilyn Hartley, Carole David, and Linda Boerner await the results

Using the techniques outlined in his salesmanship class, Mike Gavigan attempts to sell a box of Fruit Loops to his skeptical classmates examine models of a catapult and a guillotine, symbols of horror and anguish.

Awareness, Understanding, Action - Keynotes

Doug Bellgardt, Karen Christensen, Carole David, Mark Dore, and Mary Ann Allard analyze, criticize, and discuss the conflicting viewpoints of Lyndon B. Johnson and Barry Goldwater, candidates in the 1964 Presidential election.

Tracing the changing face of Africa on the map, world geography students, Ruthe Johnson, Tom Jabrocki, Barbara Christensen, and Tom Fennelly, locate new countries and the outlines of old.

To World Harmony

Juniors vigorously take notes of their American history class, televised three times a week under the direction of Mr. Lloyd Clark. Sister Mary Teresita supplements the television lectures with class discussion.

"Eo, ire, ivi, itum." Sister Rose Marie stresses the pronunciation and vowel sounds to Latin II students.

Languages Lay a Foundation for World Unity

Alan Schneider controls the tape recorder while Linda Jankowski listens in order to perfect her diction.

Exercise and Conviction - Essentials of Able Bodies and Strong Characters

Father Quillin illustrates the journeys of St. Paul the Apostle. Father's religion classes, centering around the Mystical Body, are both interesting and informative.

"Will this really help my poise?" wonders Linda Varenhorst as she, Jane Upthegrove, and Diana Budreau walk, balancing books on their heads. The girls in health class, under the direction of Mrs. Jill Howell, seek to improve their posture and acquire social graces.

The girls in gym class enjoy themselves while building strong and graceful bodies.

Exhibiting her usual graciousness and wit while SPEAKING

Engrossed in the READING of Hawthorne's "The Scarlet Letter"

Thornton Wilder's "Our Town" delights the senior English class. Stage Manager, Bob Huss, sets the atmosphere as the audience follows the romance of heroine Marjory Douglas, and hero Dennis Nelson.

Effective Communication,

A study of Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice" affords freshman students, Mary Beth Fogarty, Carole Hunter, Greg Allard, and Jeff Oquist, an opportunity to practice dramatic arts

Utilizing parallel structure and strong verbs in her WRITING

LISTENING to a lecture on the Japanese haiku, Bobb. Fogarty illustrates the four language arts.

The empty, colorful, and multi-shaped shells lying on the beach are usually looked at and forgotten. Yet, each shell has served a definite purpose for a living organism. Various activities function as part of the school program. By actively participating, a student learns to express his opinion, have it accepted or rejected, and set into operation. The outcome, usually accompanied by decorations and publicity, fades as the activity passes.
 However, the end for which activities exist in the school program is fulfilled as the character and individual development of the student is broadened to the extent that the student has partaken in school activities.

ACTIVITIES

Cross Bearer, Larry Hathaway, followed by Senior altar boys, Pete Wadel, Mike Gavigan, Jim Brickley, Don Greiner, John Allard, and Joe Martin, practice for the procession which will begin Forty Hours.

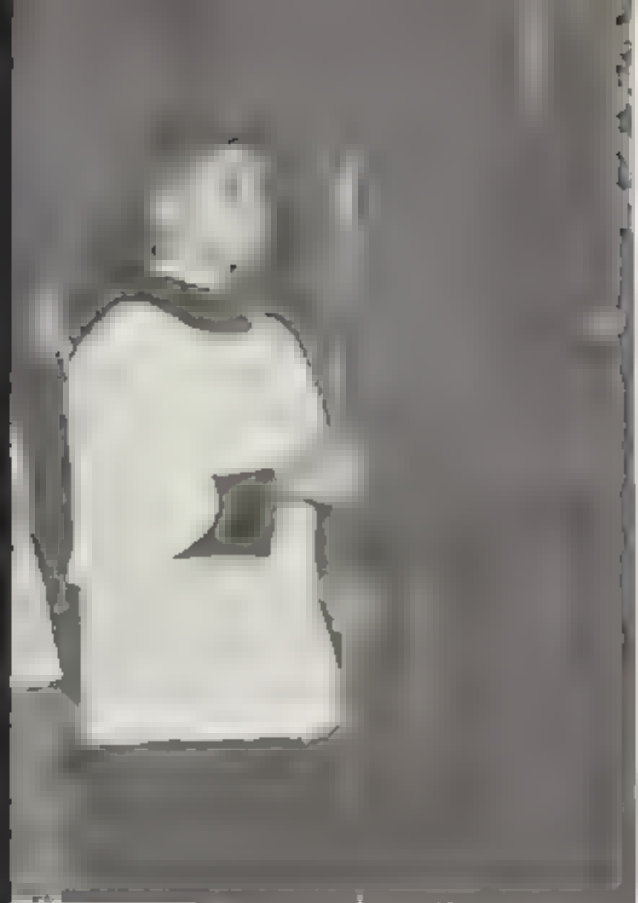

Forty Hours Devotion provides the ideal opportunity for students to pray and reflect on their spiritual growth.

We Act, We Grow in

Larry Hathaway introduces his younger brother, Paul, to the duties performed by an altar boy preceding Mass.

Mary Jabrocki and Buster Miney greet the retreat master, Father Walter P. Roberts, O.M.I., before the opening of the annual retreat for all high school students.

We Meditate, the Love of God

Silence prevails in the church as the assembled students listen and meditate upon the retreat message of Father Roberts.

Underwater Paradise Creates Mood

Our Lady's place of honor creates an inspiring background for Larry Hathaway, Diane Daron, Jaydelle Rogers, and Bob Roche, as they pose to capture a prom memory.

Pete Wadel and Margaret Gustafson pause before joining the fun and excitement of prom night. They, along with the other prom couples, will always cherish the memories of an unforgettable evening.

Hard work and imagination, paper and glue, transform the auditorium stage into an underwater paradise which Beachcombers, Larry Oliver, Jim Lemire, Joe Huss, George Wagner, and Fred Harrington, who served punch and cookies throughout the evening, take time out to enjoy the pleasant surroundings.

Carrying the tools of the trade, the students quickly pass from class to class under the watchful eyes of the hall monitors.

STUDENTS PARTICIPATE; UNITY ABOUNDS

Vicki Oquist and Nancy Elms, two avid fans of the weekly radio report of high school highlights, listen to the news prepared and presented by Margaret Gustafson and Beverly Fogarty.

Sister Mary Teresita points out the value of the Civil Defense radio to the Student Council officers, Dave Laird, Bob Roche, Maryann Rukamp, and Mike Bucholtz. This device broadcasts all severe weather forecasts, air raid warnings, and police reports.

Santa (George Gustafson): What do you want for Christmas, little boy?

Dave Laard: A doll that walks, talks, and does my homework.

Freshman salesmen, Raymond Savage, Margarite Monaghan, and Marilyn Gladick share the delight of satisfied Antonio Diaz Lombardo who samples his first American hotdog.

"Take my money or my life, but spare my green stamps!" exclaims Carole Nuckolls.

LEISURE ACTIVITIES MEAN FUN AND PROFIT

Puzzled Santa (Frank Pullano) cannot understand how Mrs. Claus (Phyllis Lorenz) drove the sleigh and delivered presents to all the children.

A slave auction initiates freshmen into the Latin Club. Auctioneer Dan O'Brien listens to bids for slave Greg Allard as Steve Goulet and Jerry Erickson wait to deliver him to his owner.

Spanish Club members, Nickey Miney, John Derler, Janet Wadel, and Dan Jankowski broaden their knowledge of Latin American culture through Mexican newspapers, piñatas, and tacos.

Diane Horacek, Bonnie Frost, Louise Greiner, and Pete Widel members of the Literary Club, grasp deeper realities of literature and life by studying literary classics.

Glee Club members, under the direction of Sister Mary Arthur, include sacred and secular music in their repertoire.

FOURTH ROW: Jean Gurzynski, Janice Rutowski, Mark Hathaway, Antonio Diaz Lombardi, Dennis Schumacher, Jim McCarthy, Joe Martin.

Raymond Savage, Jim Brackley, Joanne Masten, John Findling, and Joseph Martin represent St. Simon in the Ladington High School Bands.

Our efficient and courteous librarians Mary Piotrowski, Nancy Elems, Mary Fogarty and Ruth Fellows spend many hours keeping the library orderly.

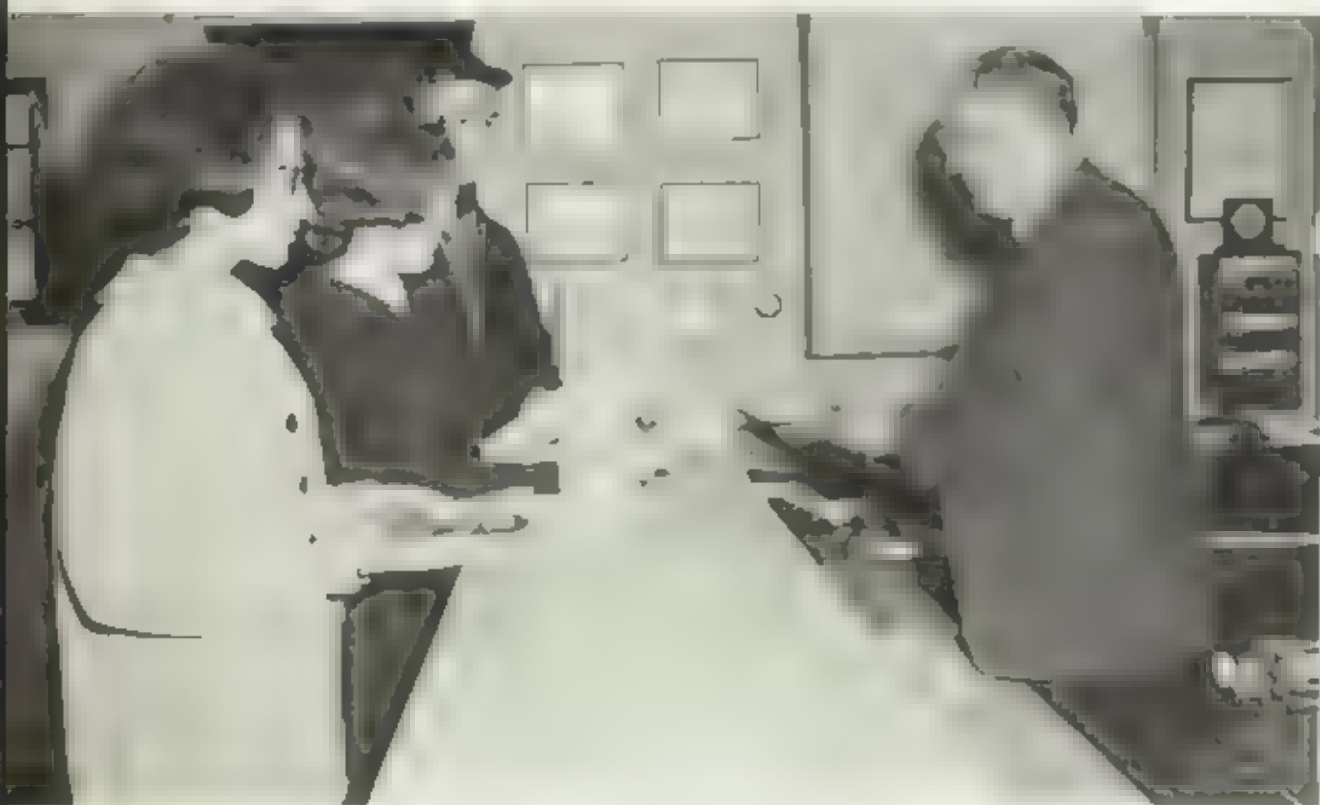

Raymond Savage, Jim Brackley, Joanne Masten, John Findling and Joseph Martin represent St. Simon in the Ladington High School Bands.

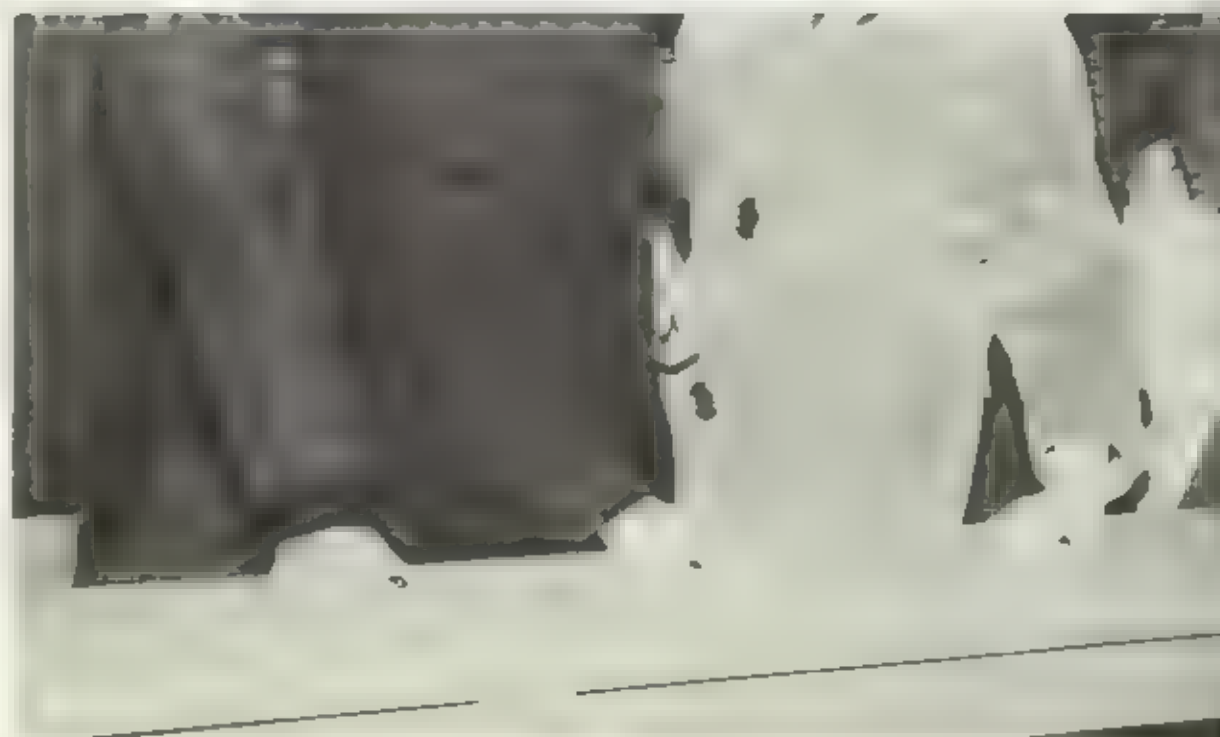

Pete Wadel, Beverly Fogarty, Dennis Nelson, Dave Laird, Larry Hathaway, and Phoebe Stapleton are in good spirits with the thought of sharing holiday cheer. Student contributions provide Christmas dinners for needy families.

Sheriff Ed Anderson welcomes the assorted magazines that Vicki Oquist, Connie Engfer, and Mike Pajonk present to him for distribution to the inmates.

STUDENTS STRIVE FOR ACADEMIC EXCELLENCE

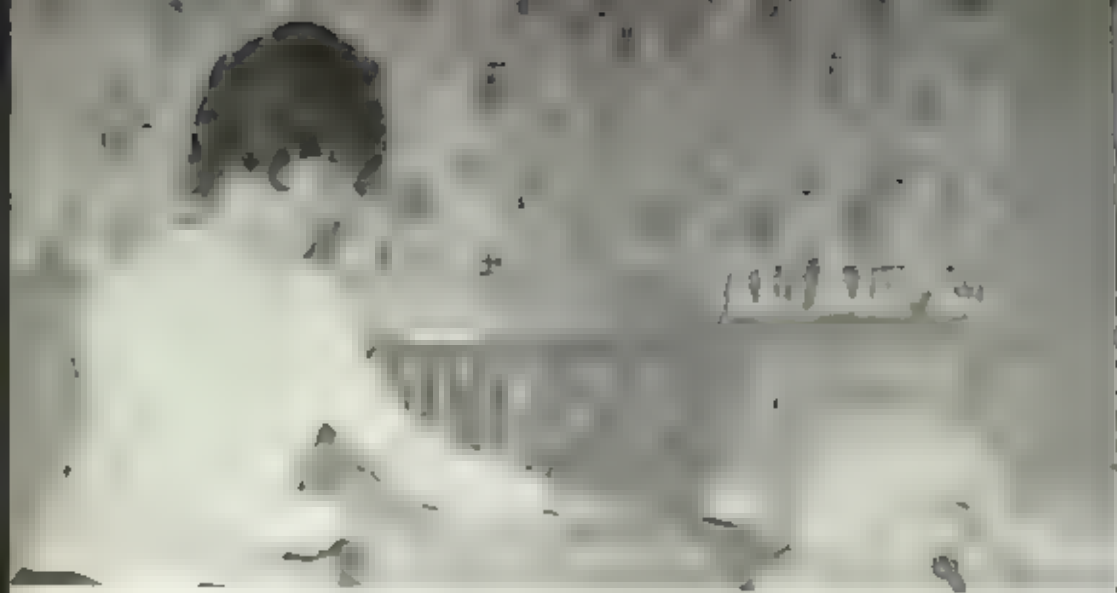

Sister Mary Teresita presents Margaret Gustafson with the notification that she has achieved the rating of semifinalist in the National Merit Scholarship Examination.

Phyllis Lorenz examines chemical substances contained in a test tube at the annual science fair.

Long hours of contemplation and construction result in the project of Polarization of Light. Diana Daron looks with satisfaction at her finished product which merited a first place rating.

Diane Daron prepares for a week's visit to Girl's State, where she will learn the essentials of student government.

After speaking to the high-school boys, Father Simon Lindgren, O.C.D., distributes vocational literature to Rick Hathaway and Mike Pajonk.

Nancy Elms and Ruth Fellows enjoy the new encyclopedias presented by a prominent women's study club to St. Simon's.

Mike Schroeder, John Allard, and Don Griener, just a few of Castonia's noon-hour boys, make and spread the hottest news in Ludington.

ST. SIMON STUDENTS CARRY SHAMROCK SPIRIT AROUND THE WORLD

Margaret Gustafson, foreign exchange student to Finland, models a dress of the Karelia section.

Hola! Eileen Del Zoppo, our first foreign exchange student to Mexico, proudly displays her souvenirs of a summer spent in learning and enjoyment.

Our first foreign exchange student, Antonio Diaz Lombardo, enters into the spirit of the yuletide season with his American family, the Hathaways, by helping to trim the traditional Christmas tree.

Small talk and dancing combine to make the 1965 Homecoming a memorable event.

Mike Bucholtz, Crown-bearer Maureen Schneider, Janet Schneider, Bob Roche, Maureen Rogers and Tim Barber.

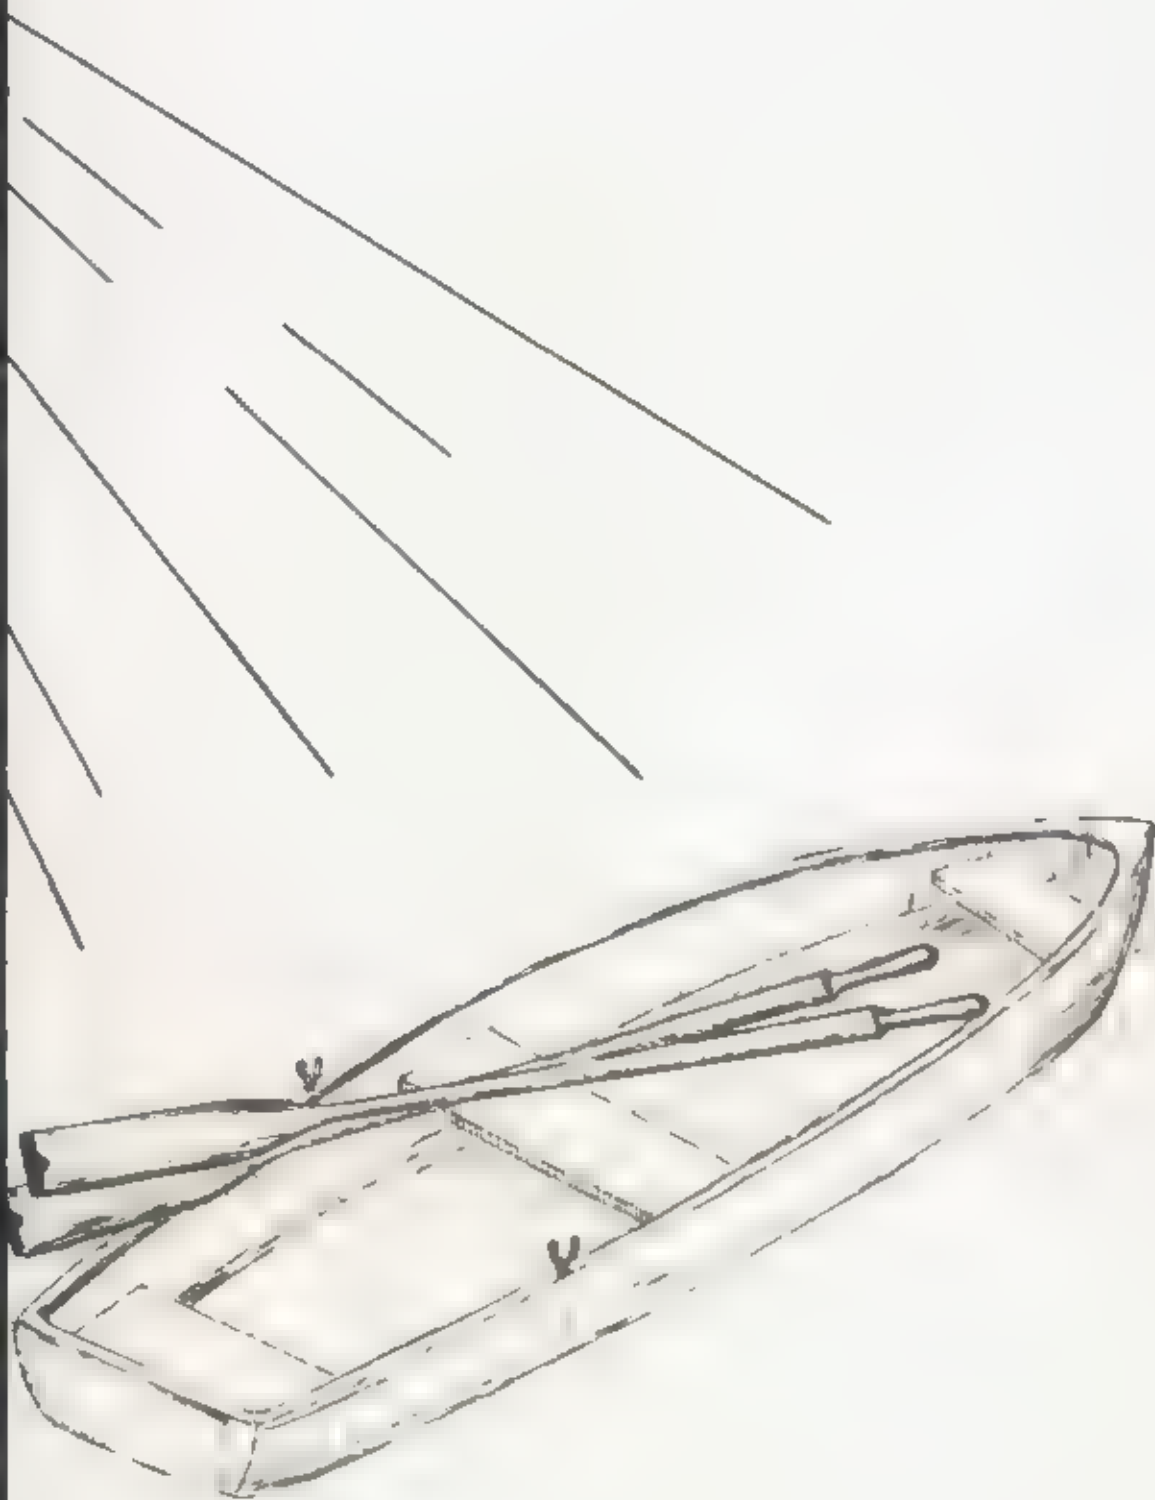

The onlooking crowd views Queen Sandy and Varsity Coach John Goulet as they begin the festivities with the traditional first dance.

From the expressions of Mary Sherlock and Joe Martin, one concludes that the 1965 Homecoming was a great success.

As the oars of the boat propel the craft forward in its path, so does an active sports program act as a moving force and a basis of school spirit. Cheerleaders cheering, fans shouting, players working, and coaches sweating are scenes of sportsmanship drama that follow the drudgery of training and regulations. Win, lose, or draw, the players and spectators uphold the tradition of Shamrock Spirit.

The newly hoisted sails hang limp, awaiting the first breezes which, filling them, will diminish their wrinkled folds. Billowing in the winds, the sails push the ship forward and out of the harbor in which it has remained safe from the storms. The graduates came as folded and new sails, but they gradually unfurled in knowledge and maturity. Having taken full advantage of the academic program offered in their four years, in the future they will look back in gratitude for the curricular guidance and teaching standards which have prepared them so adequately for their adult lives.

Dolores Lorenz: "Phone, you're not putting. Phone, you're not putting. How can I? He's standing on my foot."

"Are you sure it's done?" Janice Ratowski seems to quest on the culinary arts of Ann Marie Hathaway, as she prepares to sample the freshly baked pizza.

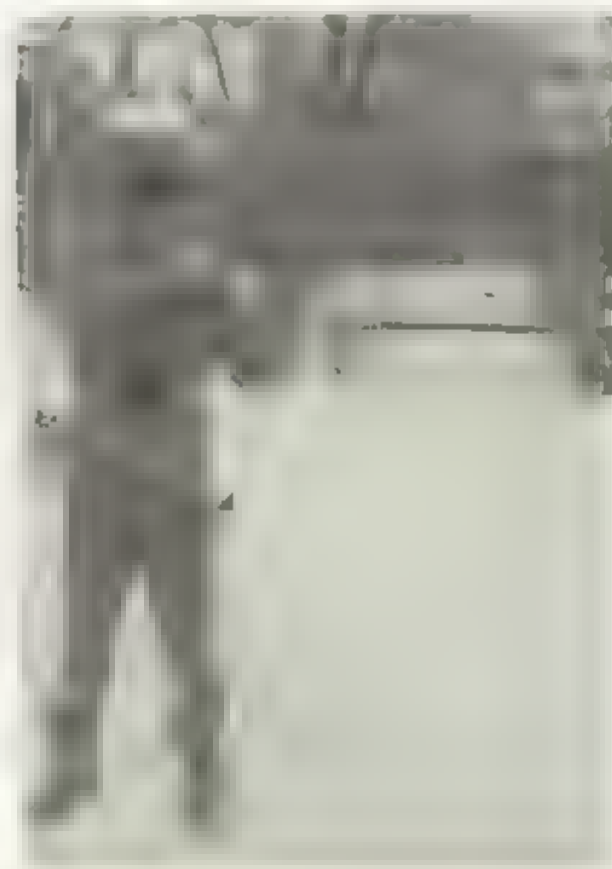

"Snap the shutter and close the door. We're freezing!" exclaim Peter Wadel and Don Greiner.

DERLER STALKS SENIORS FOR CANDID SHOTS

Dave Potter takes quick aim on an unaware victim before an afternoon of hunting the crafty squirrel.

"All mine!" Marilyn Hartley squeals as she claims her winnings from Karen Christensen and Mary Sherlock.

Two Beatle fans, Mary Ann Allard and Linda Fortier, enjoy listening to their collection.

Nancy Fenn and Margaret Gustafson engage in their hobby as they string along.

Margie Douglas sews a fine seam.

Jerry Ziemkowski prepares to knock the six-ball into the side pocket as Mike Pajonk awaits his turn.

John Derler enjoys his hobby, boating, as he rows near South Manitou Island.

An important part of Bev Fogarty's job is displaying manikins.

Bob Roche examines the useful material he collected at Boys' State.

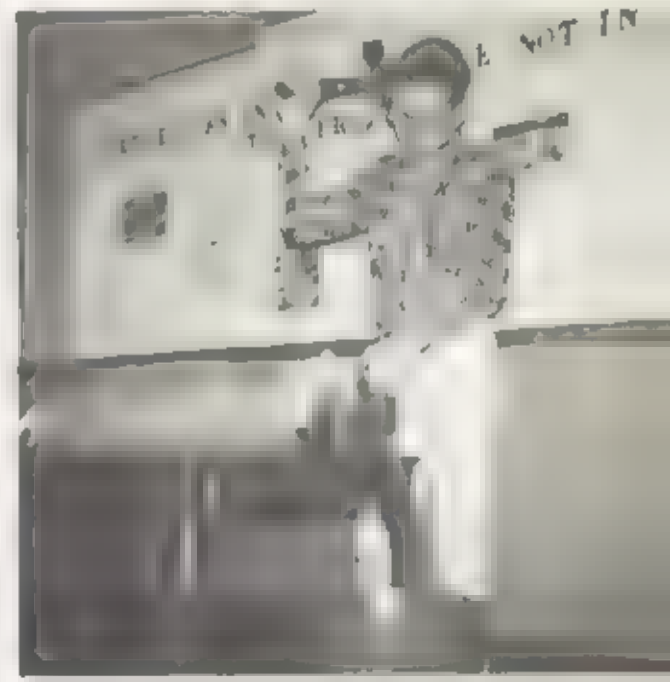

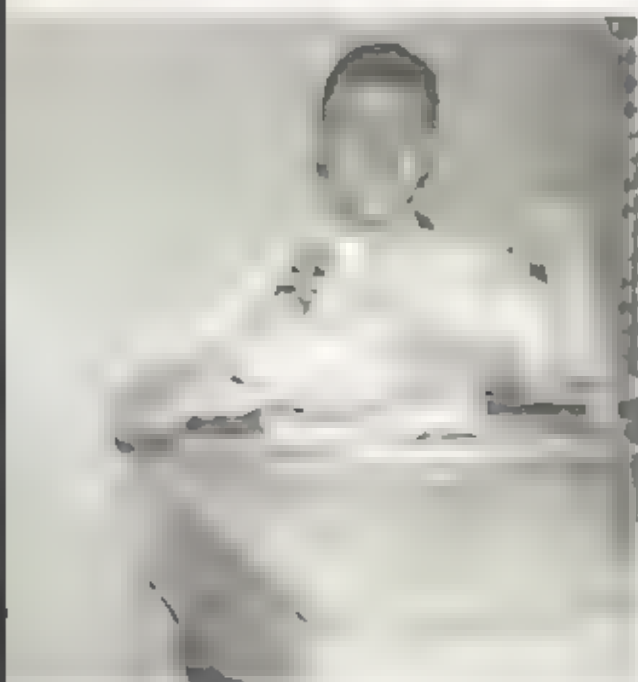

Elaine Harrington spends a cozy afternoon before the fire with Pussy Cat.

Maryann Rikamp finds spray perfume better than a squirt gun, but Mary Jabrocki has other ideas.

Mmmm, this pig's dinner looks good. Diane Daron, Raydelle Rogers, and Janet Schneider apparently think so, too.

Vicki Oquist and Carole David leave Johnny's after an evening of fun and dancing.

Dave Laird: "But I'm a growing boy!"

School work takes a lot out of a person as Dennis Schumacher can readily agree.

Who says girls spend more time in front of the mirror? Mike Bucholtz and Jim McCarthy prove the opposite.

She's pretty as a picture and just as sweet--Sandy Bellgardt.

Connie Engfer hastens to cross the street during one of her many shopping excursions.

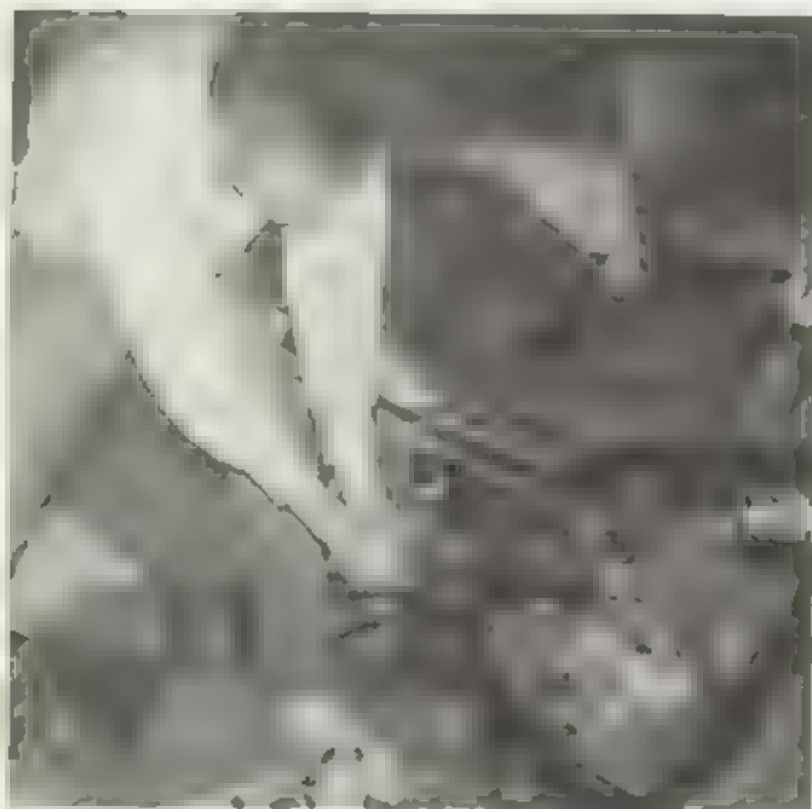

Sweet and casual. Linda Boerner strolls along the sand dunes.

Tim Barber and Mike Gavigan enact a guillotine scene, modern style.

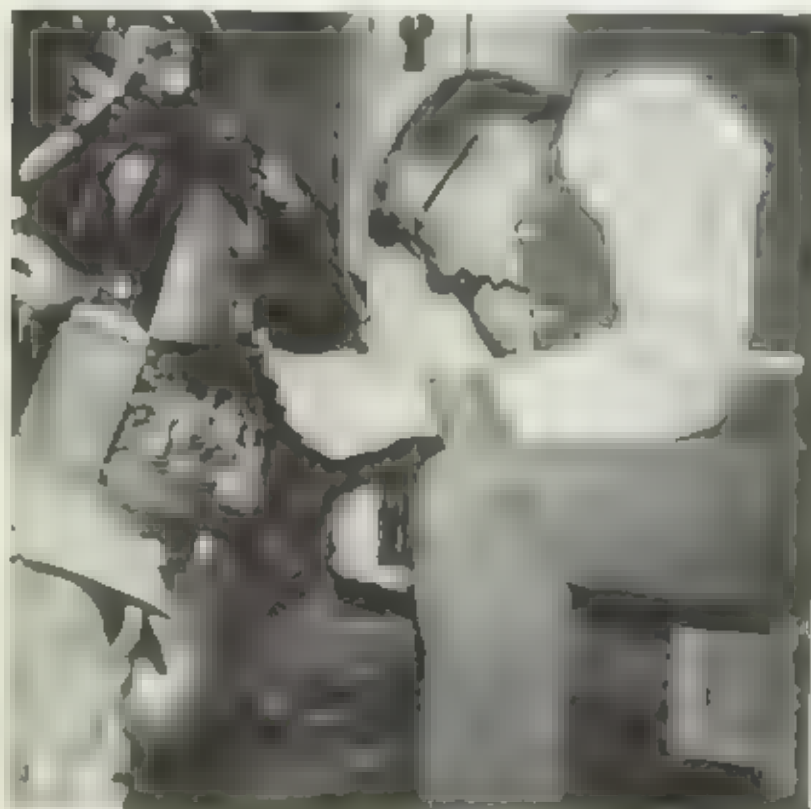

Mark Dore's "volunteer" services are rewarded by the discovery of an unused cigar.

THE CYCLE SET

Dennis Nelson would rather fight than ride anything but a Harley; John Allard applies muscle power to keep his Ducati working, and Joe Bissell wishes he'd never seen the bike. "That part must have fit before." Larry Hathaway's BSA keeps him out of money but on the move.

Bob Hoss shows good Olympic form and balance by snatching 200 lbs.

Special diet, long workouts, and a strenuous routine enable Joe Martin to clean 265 lbs.

CAMERA DISCLOSES OUTSIDE INTERESTS

'On your mark, get set, GO!' Buster Miney challenges Dan Monnot at the quarter mile.

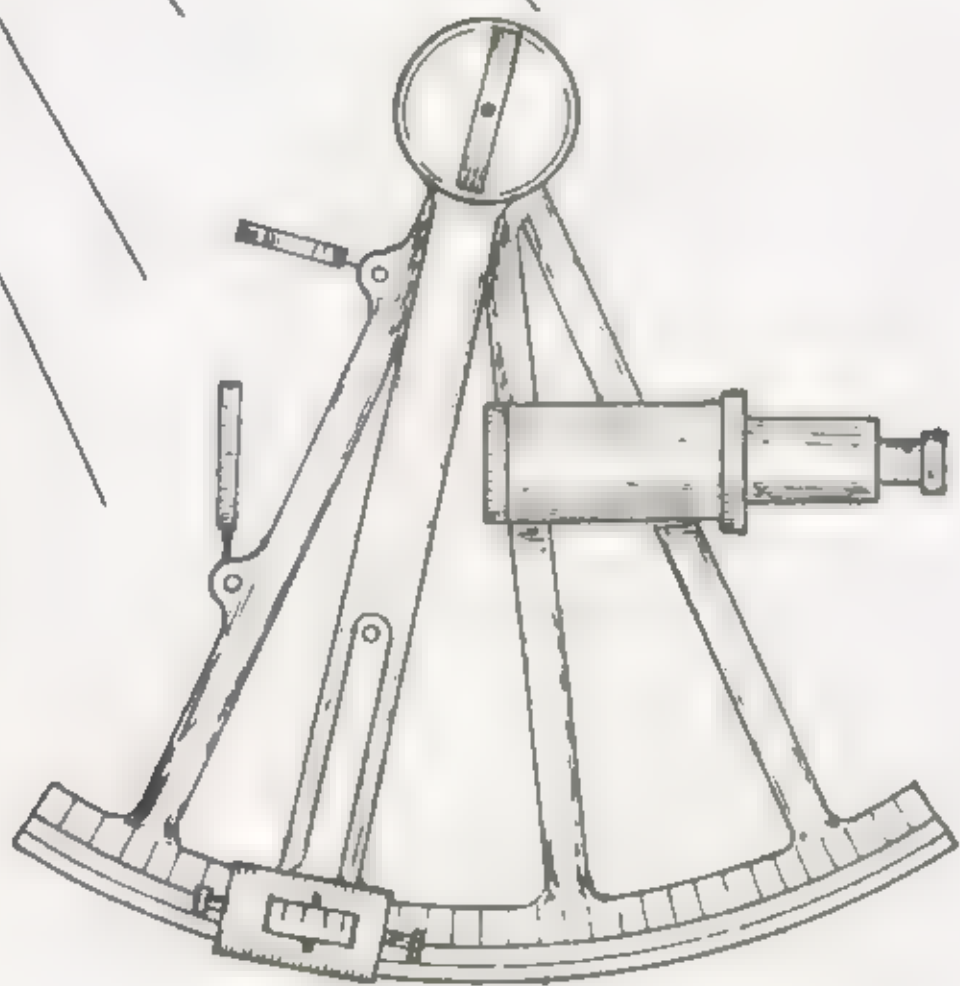

"Wanna drag?" Jim Brickley pits his three wheel Lotis against Doug Bellgardt's single engine Ferrari.

To the early navigator, the sextant was the sole means of charting the course for the coming day. The sextant, a precision instrument, must be constructed with great care and the scale measured with minute accuracy if a precise reading is to be obtained. With the under-graduates rests the challenge of plotting the course through which the future name of St. Simon High School will be carried. The character of each under-graduate will be reflected in this path which must be guided by traditions as well as by the new and beneficial ideas of the students themselves. The present under-graduates have thus far proven their ability to guide the St. Simon name along the path of prestige that it has enjoyed thus far. If they continue in the present manner, upon graduating, they too will be able to say that they have guided the ship on a smooth and accurate bearing.

UNDERCLASSMEN

"A little more teasing on top," advises Maureen Rogers to Janet Schneider who styles a new hairdo for Rita Hathaway.

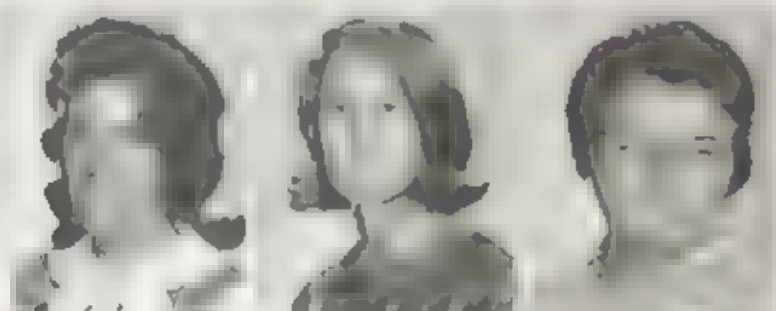

Junior class officers, Larry Greiner, pres.; Jim Lemire, vice-pres.; Phyllis Lorenz, treas.; and Mary Findling, sec.; enjoy a few minutes of leisure, putting aside the problems of fund raising, proms, the Christmas play.

Where will we hold it? What orchestra should we hire? How should we decorate? Diane Horacek, Dennis Oseland, and Bonnie Frost rely on the telephone to help answer the questions that annually plague the prom-planning committee.

Ray Huss

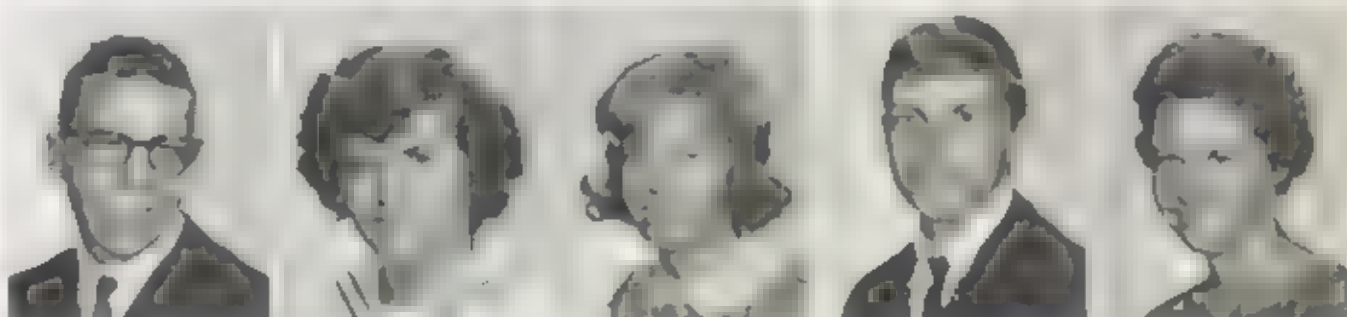

It may not have been a John Gielgud production, but Ray Huss's performance as Mark Antony won high acclaim by the sophomore critics.

Patrons, the life-saving buoys of the 1965 COROLLA, have come to our aid in time of need. Buoying our meager funds with generous contributions, they have made the St. Simon annual possible. To them we express sincere gratitude.
